Axolotls are long-lived, close relatives of the tiger salamander, surviving up to 15 years on a diet of mollusks, worms, insect larvae, crustaceans, and some fish. (21) Used to being a top predator in its habitat, this species has begun to suffer from the introduction of large fish into its lake habitat.

Populations are (22) dwindling as the demands of nearby Mexico City have led to the draining and (23) pollution of the waters of the Xochimilco Lake complex. They are also popular in the aquarium trade, and roasted axolotl is considered a (24) pleasing rare treat in Mexico, further shrinking their numbers. They are now a (25) critically endangered species.

Read the passage below and answer questions 26 to 30.

When New Zealand's second-largest city was rocked by a 6.3-magnitude earthquake earlier this year, Singapore servicemen were quick to lend a hand. Their hard work did not go unnoticed. New Zealand Defence Minister Wayne Mapp yesterday gave tokens of appreciation to Singapore Chief of Defence Force, Teo Kian Hong, and Singapore Civil Defence Force (SCDF) Assistant Commissioner, Eric Yap. They came in the form of pounamu mere – foot-long green coloured stones which symbolise courage and leadership – and were presented on board the HMNZS Te Mana, a 3,600-tonne warship. 5

In February, tragedy struck as Christchurch was hit by the quake which left at least 170 people dead. A total of 116 Singapore Armed Forces (SAF) soldiers, who were training with their New Zealand counterparts, went from practising drills to applying them in real life. 10

Republic of Singapore Air Force (RSAF) pilots and ground crew evacuated more than 160 civilians, and airlifted nearly 50 tonnes of relief aid. The servicemen from Headquarters Guards manned cordons, cleared debris and set up water purification tents. In addition, a 55-strong rescue team, comprising SCDF urban search-and-rescue team members, arrived on the scene to carry out the rescue operation. 15

It was the second major earthquake to hit the city of 350,000 people in five months. Colonel Melvyn Ong, 36, who led the Singapore contingent, said the SAF was glad to help in any way it could. He also stressed the close ties Singapore enjoys with New Zealand, saying, "If you are sitting down at dinner with a friend, and his kitchen suddenly catches fire, would you be the first one out the door or would you help him put out the fire?" 20

Commander of the SCDF effort, Ling Kok Yong, said he was touched by the welcome he had felt while working the ground. The New Zealanders even set up mobile shower areas for him and his men. 25

"They made our job easier by taking good care of us and it is something we can learn from them," he said.

Speaking at the event, Dr Mapp said that the quick response was the result of many years of close ties. He added, "We knew we could count on a small number of countries to be quick responders, and Singapore was right at the top of that list." 30

- (1) practised hard at their training
- (2) rendered aid during the disaster
- (3) presented New Zealand with a warship after the earthquake
- (4) exhibited courage and leadership in the evacuation of the civilians

27 Before the earthquake, the SAF soldiers were _____.

- (1) still stationed in Singapore
- (2) preparing for the earthquake
- (3) attending the presentation ceremony
- (4) participating in a joint military exercise

28 Which three-word phrase in the passage has the same meaning as 'help' in line 22?

- (1) lend a hand
- (2) taking good care
- (3) managed the effort
- (4) working the ground

29 In paragraph 6, the word 'it' in line 28 refers to _____.

- (1) the care that was extended to the servicemen
- (2) the mobile shower areas set up for the servicemen
- (3) the warm welcome expressed by the New Zealanders
- (4) the way the New Zealanders showed their appreciation

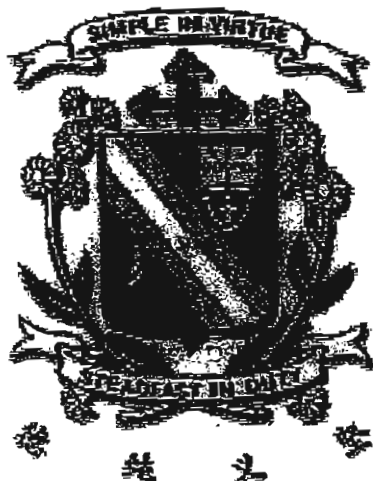

30 What is the most appropriate title for this passage?

To the great delight of the children, schools were being hurriedly closed. Children of all ages and sizes were running helter-skelter, screaming joyously, "No school, no school. Tiger, Tiger!" They were shouting and laughing and even enjoyed being scared, their laughter welcoming it into the village. However, the joyous mood of the children soon subsided when they actually saw the beast.

5

It followed them through their school gate while they ran up and were shut in the school hall securely. It saw an open door at the far end and walked into the room. A very dignified man jumped on his table and heaved himself into an attic. It flung itself on the cool stone floor, with its head under the large desk. There, it felt like it was back home, in Mempi cave. Half asleep, it heard the room door shut and the door bolt from the outside. It did not care. Then it heard a great deal of discussion going on outside the room.

"Oh dear! The headmaster is still in there! Never dreamt in my wildest mood that I'd have to yield the headmaster's office to a tiger," said a man called Madan. "Who has a gun in our town?" a Mathematics teacher asked.

Suddenly, there was a loud banging noise from the attic. All of them cried, "Let us get out of here. It is trying to break open the door!"

"But it has no hands. It can't open the door!" a Science teacher retorted. They sat down calmly to discuss the situation again.

"We can't call the police. How will they arrest it?" an English teacher cried out. All eyes were on Madan, who was the next in command. In the absence of the headmaster, he was now in charge. Madan fidgeted nervously as he tried to look away from them. Yet, he said nothing. Nothing at all.

Meanwhile, all the talking outside was disturbing the beast. It let out a loud roar and scratched its nails against the table. The crowd, which had become silent, let out a moan in chorus, "Never thought our beloved headmaster would come to this end!" They looked bitterly at Madan, whom they somehow held responsible. Madan had mixed feelings - elated that he was finally getting the chance to become the headmaster but overwhelmed by a wave of sadness. Despite himself, he wailed the loudest at the thought of the headmaster's fate.
