Section E: Comprehension Multiple-Choice Questions (5 x 1 mark)

Read the passage carefully and answer questions 31 to 35.

Helen Keller was born in Alabama, America on 27 June 1880. Her father was a newspaper editor and her mother was a homemaker.

When Helen was two, she had a high fever. After some time, the terrible illness passed, but so did Helen's sight and hearing. Trapped in a world of silence and darkness, Helen sometimes acted like a crazy animal. Unable to see and hear, she would hit or kick anyone within her reach to vent her frustrations. She could cry and scream, but not talk as she had never learnt to or heard anyone speak before. 5

However, Helen still had the use of her other senses like smell and touch. She could feel people's lips move and feel the vibrations in their throats when they spoke. She recognized people by running her fingers over their faces. She made up her own sign language, like pretending to put on imaginary glasses and to tie her hair when referring to her father and mother respectively. 10

Soon afterwards, her father got her a teacher, Annie Sullivan. Annie was an industrious teacher. She put in a lot of effort to teach Helen. It was Annie's patience and hardwork that made Helen learn to read and speak. Annie made Helen rise to greater heights in life and to be admired by many. 15

33. Before Helen learnt how to speak, she tried to communicate with others by _____.

- (1) feeling people's faces
- (2) creating her own sign language
- (3) feeling people's lip and throat movements
- (4) kicking and screaming at people around her

34. The word 'industrious' in line 15 means _____.

- (1) strict
- (2) caring
- (3) patient
- (4) diligent

35. Which one of following statements is true?

- (1) Helen's illness took away all her senses.
- (2) Helen got violent when she was frustrated.
- (3) Helen could not speak as she did not want to.
- (4) Helen could read when she wore her imaginary glasses.

Lonny stepped off the path and climbed over the rocks to the beach. It was very early in the morning, (51) _____ seven o'clock but the sky was already bright.

He put down the big basket he had brought along to contain the (52) _____ he was going to pick. He shaded his eyes with his hand and looked along the clean white sand of the beach towards the sea. Someone was already on the beach and Lonny knew who it was. It was Gordon, his arch enemy. He was (53) _____ at the beach picking seashells. Lonny guessed that, like him, Gordon was looking for a rare pink conch shell.

He saw Gordon at the far end of the beach. Gordon had (54) _____ down to pick up something. Lonny's stomach clenched with anxiety, "What if he had found the pink shell?" But Gordon's disappointed face told him (55) _____. Lonny heaved a sigh of relief, picked up his basket and continued his search. He was more determined than ever to find the pink shell now.

Section J: Comprehension Open-ended Questions (5 x 2 marks)

Read the passage carefully and answer questions 56 to 60.

The cold lands of the Arctic at the North Pole form one of the last wildernesses on Earth. There are still huge areas undisturbed by man over there. At first sight, the Arctic looks like a cold desert. For the most part of the year, snow and ice cover the treeless landscape.

However, many plants and animals have managed to survive and even flourish. The plants, insects, birds and animals of the Arctic have all developed ways of adapting to the harsh environment. 5

There are no tall Arctic plants as the growing season is too short for them to grow much, and there is too little water. They grow close to the ground for protection against the icy winds and to suck up every drop of moisture in summer. 10

Arctic foxes have the ability to change their fur according to the seasons. In summer, their fur is brown while in winter, it becomes white. This enables Arctic foxes to blend into their surrounding throughout the year. It is not easy to spot a white Arctic fox against the blanket of snow.

The Arctic has still retained its natural charm and remains beautiful as it is yet to be touched by man. 15

Adapted from 'Arctic Lands' by Jill Hughes

Answer the following questions. Write your answers in complete sentences.

56. Where is the Arctic located?

57. Why is the Arctic compared to a desert?

58. Which word in the paragraph 2 means 'to grow well'?

59. What does the word 'They' in line 9 refer to?

60. How does its white fur help the Arctic fox to survive during winter?
