Dear Mary,

School holidays are coming and I would like to sign up for both the Holiday Drama Workshops organised by Act3. Drama Academy on their campus. Would you like to join me?

One of the workshops, "If Trees Could Talk", is inspired by Dr Seuss! Participants will learn dramatic storytelling in the two-hour workshop. It costs $80 and there are three dates to choose from: 17, 18 or 20 November 2013.

In the other workshop, "The Golden Touch" we will learn tales with a moral and understand the concepts of selflessness, courage and being giving. One of the tales is about King Midas, who asked for the golden touch and paid the price for being greedy and selfish. The three-session workshop will take place from 2 to 4 December 2013 daily and costs $180.

Mary, you can get more information about the workshops by calling 64753935. The registration form can be obtained either from www.act3drama.com or the School of the Arts (SOTA). We can sign up at the Act3 Drama Academy or simply mail the completed form to them at 52 Maine Road, S (298052). We must sign up before 16 November 2013.

If we are one of the first 10 kids to sign up for both workshops, we will get a free gift! Mary, shall we sign up for the workshops?

One April morning, Mr Hoppy exchanged polite conversation with his new neighbour, Miss Silver. That morning was the first time they had spoken since she moved in. Miss Silver was tidying her balcony when Mr Hoppy happened to look down from his balcony and greet her. She looked up and they spoke briefly.

Mr Hoppy soon noticed that Miss Silver would be on her balcony every morning and made sure he was on his, just to catch a glimpse of her. The distance between their balconies might not have been great, but to Mr Hoppy, it seemed like a million miles. This went on for three months before he decided to invite Miss Silver up for tea. 5

That morning, as Mr Hoppy was about to form the words on his lips, his courage failed him for he was a painfully shy man. He wished he could do something tremendous like saving Miss Silver's life or rescuing her from a gang of thugs. He thought that if he could perform a great feat it would make him a hero in her eyes. However, Miss Silver had only eyes for somebody else – Alfie. Alfie had been with Miss Silver for years and he lived in a little house on her balcony. 10 15

At the beginning of the cold season in November, Miss Silver would fill Alfie's house with dry hay. He would crawl in there and bury himself deep under the day, sleeping for months without food or water in the early spring, Alfie would wake up and crawl slowly out of his house on to the balcony. Miss Silver would clap her hands joyfully and gush, "Alfie! How I have missed you!" 20

Seeing how Miss Silver adored Alfie, Mr Hoppy wished that he could change places with Alfie and become a terrapin.
