Section C: Comprehension (10 marks)

Read the following passage and answer questions 15 to 22.

Ever heard of World Pangolin Day, celebrated on 18 February, 2017? Pangolins in Asia and Africa, weigh from 1.6 kg to 33 kg. They are light yellowish, dark green or brown. A pangolin uses its long, strong, sticky and slimy tongue to catch ants and termites. These gentle animals are toothless and not violent. They have poor eyesight and use their great sense of smell to find food. In the wild, they are quiet and hard to find. They stay awake and are active at night. They live and work alone and so, are solitary. The China species sleep in holes in the ground. Those in Africa and Malaysia sleep in trees. They use their huge front claws to burrow or for climbing. Pangolins have mainly scales-covered bodies. They are made of keratin, like our fingernails and hair. In times of danger, they roll up into a tight ball to protect themselves. They lash out at enemies using their scaly sharp tails too. Sadly, people hunt them for their scales and meat. This makes them more endangered. It is important to raise the awareness of their sad situation, not just on their special day but all year round to save them from being extinct. <small>Adapted from https://www.worldwildlife.org/species/pangolin</small>	5 10 15

Section G: Comprehension (10 marks)

Read the following passage and answer questions 37 to 44.

Two Native American Indian children, Wabi and Kato, were banished to the forest by their wicked stepmother. That hot afternoon, the forest was alive with buzzing and hooting sounds. The sounds and strange eyes among the thick trees frightened them as they walked, holding hands tightly while comforting each other.	5
"Look, there is a deer's trail," cried Kato suddenly. "Its tracks will lead us out of the forest." They soon came to a huge spreading oak tree and decided to pitch their tent in its shade.
Wabi was thirsty and seeing water in a large hoof print, knelt to drink. After a sip, he began to feel funny. Antlers grew from his head, a white fur covered his body and he grew hooves. He had turned into a white stag a male deer and at once, they heard their stepmother's voice coming from an oak tree.	10
"Nobody will ever be able to save him unless they fell this oak tree. That would be hard to do so."
Kato looked around but she saw no one. When Kato tried to chop down the tree with her little 'tomahawk', it broke. She lay down and cried herself to sleep against Wabi's soft fur.	15
Days passed. Each morning, Wabi trotted off to graze and remained away until evening. One day, he galloped home at midday, chased by hunters. Among them was their father! Kato told them the whole story. The hunters decided to burn down the oak tree.	20
Soon, the tree came crashing down and Wabi changed back into a human. He was saved. Out of the smoke, a black owl flew screeching into the forest. Wabi said softly, "Our stepmother was a witch and now, she must live forever with the evil spirits of the forest."	25
