Saving Endangered Wildlife

Despite mounting global efforts to save endangered wildlife, some species of wildlife still cannot escape the fate of vanishing from the Earth. Various educational programmes and measures have been put in place worldwide to prevent populations of endangered wildlife from decreasing further. Trying to curb the dwindling numbers is a never-ending challenge.

Zoos

Wild animals are kept in captivity in zoos. Some have been saved from extinction by their breeding programmes. However, some animal activists object to this idea. They believe the animals are held in poor and cramped conditions.

Wildlife Sanctuaries and National Parks

These places keep animals safe from being killed illegally. For example, African wildlife sanctuaries allow African Elephants to breed in safe environments. This results in an increase in their population. However, locals sometimes object to sanctuaries being established because it may deprive them of the usage of land. They can no longer use the land for traditional farming or hunting.

African Elephant

Sustainable Fishing

Due to the high demand for seafood, fishing practices all over the world are depleting fish and shellfish populations. To allow marine life to reproduce and increase their population, we must learn to preserve habitats by not overfishing. Regulations and government policies are put in place to manage fishing activities. Hopefully, this will ensure that we leave enough fish in the oceans for future generations.

Education

Although there are many ways we can try to save wildlife, one of the most effective ways is to educate the public. It is important for governments and the relevant authorities to educate people on wildlife conservation. They need to be discouraged from using products that contribute to the killing of endangered wildlife.

21 What is the main purpose of the advertisement?

- (1) to raise funds for the Wildlife Conservation Fund
- (2) to introduce musical performances by local artistes
- (3) to raise public awareness on wildlife conservation efforts
- (4) to share what Ms Thomson is doing at The Wildlife Sanctuary

22 Mr Ong wants to get a free set of animal keychains. He has to _____.

- (1) buy a $20 photo book
- (2) spend $20 on food or drinks
- (3) be the first 200 visitors at the fair
- (4) visit more than 20 food and drink stalls

23 Why are the words 'first 200 visitors' in bold?

- (1) to highlight to readers that there will be free gifts
- (2) to entice readers to be the first 200 to visit the fair
- (3) to inform readers that only 200 visitors will be allowed entry
- (4) to emphasise to readers that the 200 posters are very valuable

24 Who is the organiser of the Wildlife Conservation Fair?

- (1) The Singapore Zoo
- (2) The Wildlife Sanctuary
- (3) Animal Conservation Group
- (4) Singapore Animal Foundation

25 If one wishes to sign up as a volunteer at The Wildlife Sanctuary, one should _____.

- (1) call 9123 4567
- (2) leave a message on Facebook
- (3) visit the website www.tws.com.sg
- (4) send an email to volunteer@tws.org

26 Which of the following statements is true?

- (1) Money collected from the sale of food and drinks will go to The Wildlife Conservation Fund.
- (2) You must be experienced in caring for animals to volunteer at The Wildlife Sanctuary.
- (3) People are encouraged to go fishing often so that the population of the marine life will increase.
- (4) Many farmers oppose the development of animal sanctuaries because they want to use the land for farming.

27 Which of the following words from the section 'Saving Endangered Wildlife' is used to describe the extent of the conservation efforts?

- (1) mounting
- (2) dwindling
- (3) worldwide
- (4) endangered

28 According to the flyer, the best way to save endangered animals is to

- (1) keep all endangered animals in wildlife sanctuaries
- (2) educate people to reduce the killing of these animals
- (3) increase the number of animals kept in national parks
- (4) ensure animals have habitats similar to their natural environment

"Jinhang! How many times have I told you not to use the computer for so long? Do you want thicker lenses for your glasses?" Mother's voice shot out from the kitchen.

I got out of my seat and walked into the kitchen. Mother was making dumplings. I sat down beside her and picked up some dough. Seeing this, Mother smiled at me, "Yes, that's a good girl."

5

I started wrapping, finishing each dumpling off with a clumsy pinch. After I had made ten dumplings, I looked at my handiwork, dissatisfied. Picking up my tray of dumplings, I walked towards the wastepaper basket. Mother stopped me, saying, "They don't look like much, but they will be tasty nevertheless." I sat back down, then tried to continue making more dumplings, but I found myself unconsciously looking at the ugly ones I had made earlier.

10

"Do you remember when you were younger? You were always sick," Mother started. "At school, the older kids kicked you, and snatched things from you, but you never fought back." I winced at the memory.

Growing up, I was a timid child. Once I had taken my favourite toy lion to kindergarten. Everyone swarmed around me, admiring it. I loved the attention. That afternoon, my classmate grabbed the lion, claiming it as hers. When I finally summoned the courage to tell Mother about this, I expected her to comfort me. Instead, she gave me one of the worst telling-offs of my life.

As if reading my thoughts, Mother continued, "Do you know why I reprimanded you? You did nothing wrong. Father and I knew you were vulnerable, and needed you to learn to defend yourself." Then it hit me. All these years, I thought I had been scolded because I was useless and unable to protect my belongings, but all Mother wanted was to teach me to stand up for myself.

20

"Now look carefully at this big ball of dough," Mother said, pointing to the bowl. "That used to be me. Then I decided to sacrifice part of me for you." She plucked off a small piece of dough and flattened it with a rolling pin.

25

"Now examine this wrapper." She held up the thin sheet of dough. "This was you when you were born. At that time, even a squeeze could scar you for life." Mother loaded a tablespoon of filling into the centre of the wrapper. "Then we started adding in filling: carrots, vegetables and mushrooms. We taught you values and equipped you with all the life skills you needed."

30

"As a last move, we sealed our gift from God – with love." Mother pinched the dumpling close. I smiled, knowing that I now had to be independent.
