Time: 8.00 – 9.10 a.m.

Duration: 1 hour 10 minutes

ENGLISH LANGUAGE PAPER 1

SITUATIONAL WRITING (15 Marks)

CONTINUOUS WRITING (40 Marks)

INSTRUCTIONS TO CANDIDATES:

1. Write your name, class and register number.
2. Do not turn over this page until you are told to do so.
3. Follow all instructions carefully.
4. Write your answers on the answer sheet and foolscap provided.

Part 1: Situational Writing (15 marks)

1 The pictures below show a conversation Mr Li had with Jennie and Lisa from Pine Primary School. Study the conversation carefully.

The comic strip consists of three panels, each showing three characters: Mr. Li (a man with glasses in a plaid shirt), Jennie (a girl with short dark hair), and Lisa (a girl with short dark hair holding a book).
Panel 1: Mr. Li asks Jennie and Lisa about the Library Week planning. Jennie responds that they had a meeting and are hoping to invite Mr. Tim. Lisa suggests scheduling the talk for 2pm.
Panel 2: Mr. Li asks Jennie to request that Mr. Tim share his inspiration and provide opening lines. Jennie agrees. Lisa wonders if Mr. Tim has time to talk about his book.
Panel 3: Mr. Li expresses doubt about Mr. Tim's availability and sets a deadline of 1 September. Jennie confirms it's for Library Week. Lisa thanks Mr. Li and confirms the date as 12 October.

Panel 1:

Mr Li: Hello Lisa and Jennie. How's the planning for the Library Week coming along? I understand you had a meeting with the club members yesterday.

Jennie: It went well, Mr Li. Jennie and I are hoping to invite Mr Tim for the author's time.

Lisa: Yes. I could write to invite him. The members suggested to schedule the talk for 2pm. Would that be alright?

Panel 2:

Mr Li: Great! I'm sure our members will look forward to the talk. Could you request that he shares with us where he gets his inspiration from? Also, ask Mr Tim to share three strong opening lines because he's very good at that.

Jennie: Sure, I'll do all that.

Lisa: I wonder if Mr Tim has the time to talk about his best-seller 'The Morning Star'.

Panel 3:

Mr Li: I doubt so, Lisa. We've to end the talk by 3pm. I'll book the Function Room for the event. By the way, let Mr Tim know why we're organising this talk for our members and to confirm if he's able to give the talk by 1 September.

Jennie: Sure, Mr Li. It has to do with the Library Week, right?

Lisa: Thanks, Mr Li. I'm sure all our members will enjoy the session on 12 October.

Part 1: Situational Writing (15 marks)

Your Task

Imagine you are Jennie Chan, the president of Pine Primary School Library Club. You had been tasked to help organise a talk for the library club members.

Write an email to Mr Tim to invite him to give a talk to the club members.

You should refer to the information on page 2.

In your email, include the following information:

- why you are writing to Mr Tim
- the purpose for organising the talk
- when and where the talk will be held
- what Mr Tim needs to share during the talk
- when the author needs to reply you

You may reorder the points. You must write in complete sentences.

Part 2: Continuous Writing (40 marks)

- 2 Write a composition of at least 150 words about the best day in one's life.

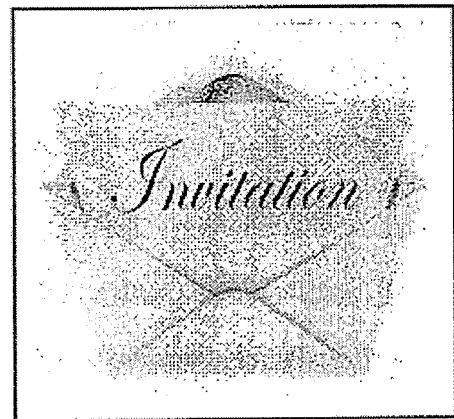

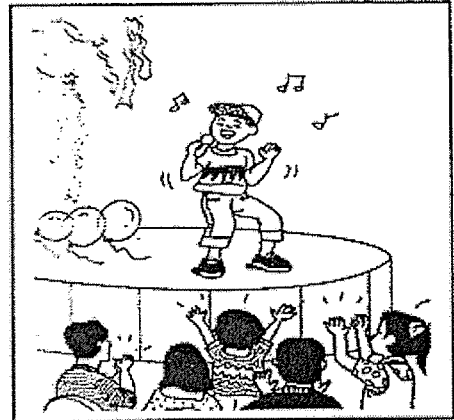

The pictures are provided to help you think about this topic.

Your composition should be based on one or more of these pictures.

Consider the following points when you plan your composition:

- What was the best day?
- What happened?

You may use the points in any order and include other relevant points as well.

The Students' Press – June Issue 2020

Giving Outdoor Adventures a Shot

Written by Alison Li

The last time I slept outdoors in a tent was during a Primary 1 camp and I recall sleeping on the wet ground as rain pelted down noisily on the thin canvas sheet. The wind carried with it the smell of dingy toilets. Once I was back home, I gratefully slipped between my soft sheets and slept for 20 hours straight!

I have since avoided sleeping in anything that needs to be pitched though the nature lover in me continues to seek the great outdoors. So when my parents asked me if I wanted to give Glamping a try during our last holiday, I thought, "Should I give those tents another chance? But if 'comfy beds' were provided, why not?"

Lo and behold, the moment my parents and I checked into our 'room' by the water's edge, I fell in love with it. The glittering setting sun, the gentle breeze rocking the tent, the dinner under the stars and nodding off to the waves crashing on the shore while staying snug in bed were the most memorable moments of the trip.

Now I understand why my parents had encouraged me to give the tents another chance. Thanks to them, I got to experience the new trend of enjoying the fun of the outdoors without having to sacrifice modern comforts such as those found in hotels. The adventure factor of traditional camping with hotel-style accommodation was indeed a whole new experience for me. When it was time to leave, I felt both calm and energised.

It's difficult not to be happy on an outdoor adventure!

Written by Julius Ong

Why? I could immerse myself in Mother Nature and appreciate the flora and fauna around me. I could relish in the splendid scenery and the experience of living outdoors. I could feel the tranquility all around, the sweet sound of birdsongs and the soothing rustle of leaves in the breeze. I could...

... camp and at the same time enjoy hotel amenities;

... spend less as compared to booking a hotel room;

... enjoy fresh air in a natural landscape;

... move around freely as the tents were comfortable and spacious;

... relax in the sounds of nature;

... break free from spending too much time on electronic devices and have more time with my family.

A shop owner placed a sign that read: "Puppies for Sale, $30 to $50". _____ little boy saw the sign and approached the owner. He pulled out some change _____ his pocket and said, "I have only $2. But can I please look at your puppies?" The shop owner smiled and whistled. Out of the kennel came a Labrador, followed by five tiny balls of fur. One puppy was falling _____ considerably. At once, the little boy singled _____ the puppy and asked, "What's wrong with that (32)

(31)

little dog?"
The shop owner explained that it _____ not have a hip socket. It would

The hawker culture in Singapore is the practice of eating and interacting at hawker centres while enjoying food prepared by hawkers. This is an important part of our way of _____ (51). The origins of hawker culture can be traced _____ (52) to the mid-1800s when the first street hawkers would ply the streets selling an _____ (53) of mouth-watering food that they would _____ (54) not on a plate but on a betel nut palm leaf. Back then, the street hawkers took up the trade to _____ (55) a living. It was a popular occupation as it _____ (56) minimal culinary skills. Up till the 1970s, street food stalls could be seen in _____ (57) such as Chinatown and Orchard Road. They were popular gathering spaces, offering affordable local delights _____ (58) as laksa and safay to customers from all _____ (59) of life.

Today, the hawker culture is still alive. There are more than 110 hawker centres across the _____ (60). They continue to hold a special _____ (61) in our hearts – those childhood memories, meals with families and friends and delicious local food. The hawker centres are a unique aspect of Singapore culture. They are also places for social interaction and community bonding, _____ (62) to the diverse needs of individuals. The vibrant hawker culture in Singapore that we enjoy is the _____ (63) of the support of many – the community groups, government and Singaporeans who patronise them. The food available is a representation of our multi-racial _____ (64), comprising the Chinese, Malay and Indian as well as other minority groups.

Sadly, as elderly hawkers retire, there are fewer young people willing to _____ (65) on with Singapore's hawker food tradition. Hawker work is hot and tiring. Still, the government is doing all it can to preserve Singapore's hawker heritage.

_____ by the chefs.

I finally spotted it at the base of an enormous tree. There was no sound inside. I began to imitate the high-pitched squeak of a mother wolf calling for her young. I waited. Nothing happened. Wolf pups are known to be shy and cautious. I tried again. Then, a few moments later, four tiny pups appeared. Gingerly, I placed them into my bag and headed back down the slope.

It was a splendid morning. I had been hiking in the forest in Alaska. As I emerged from the woods, I froze in my tracks. In front of me was a huge Alaskan wolf – its leg caught in a trap. Seeing the tiny paw prints in the snow, I knew she had just given birth. Confused and frightened by my presence, the wolf backed away, straining at the trap. Could she have been trapped for some time? Had she fed her pups? But, I knew better than to free her leg. What if she turned aggressive? What if she attacked me? Thus, I decided to look for her babies instead and began to follow the trails that might lead me to her den.

10

When the mother wolf spotted me, she sat up. I released her pups, and they raced to her. "What's next?" I wondered. The mother wolf was clearly suffering as she whimpered in pain. Yet each time, I moved in her direction, a menacing growl rumbled in her throat. She needed food. I had to find her something to eat. Picking up my bag, I hiked towards the closest river and spotted the carcass of a deer on the snowbank. I took one of its legs and left the rest in nature's refrigerator. Carrying the meat back to the wolf, I whispered in a soothing tone, "Here's your dinner. But only if you stop growling at me." Next, I tossed it in her direction. She sniffed at it and then gobbled it up.

That night, I made a makeshift shelter under a tree not far away from the wolf family and was soon fast asleep. The unexpected happened the next morning. I was awakened by four fluffy, fearless bundles sniffing at my face. Over the next few days, I attempted to get close to her. I talked gently to her, threw her more meat and played with her young. Little by little, I kept edging closer to her, but the big animal never took her suspicious dark eyes off me. Then, on the fifth day, when I delivered her the meat, her pups came bounding towards me. At least, I had their trust, I thought. Just as I was beginning to lose hope, I saw the wolf wagging her tail slightly. Instinctively, I sat close to her. But, my heart was in my mouth. One snap of her huge jaw and it could spell doom for me. I wrapped my blanket around myself and slept fitfully that night.

I awoke at dawn, stirred by the sound of the pups. Gently, I leaned over and petted them. Assessing the situation, I placed my hand on the wolf's injured leg. She flinched but made no threatening move. "This can't be happening," I thought excitedly. I could see that the trap's steel jaws had imprisoned two of her toes. Applying pressure, the trap sprang open and the wolf was free! Almost immediately, she began licking my fingers. I was astonished! This went against everything I had heard about wolves – dangerous, ferocious, intimidating. That day, I found out that these animals, in fact, are actually very social, family-oriented and trustworthy.
