Read the diary entry carefully.

26th September 2009

Dear Diary,

I noticed that my pet, Sha Sha, was behaving differently this morning. It was quiet and did not meow at all. At noon, it had not eaten or drunk any water. I decided to take it to a veterinarian.

While waiting for the bus, I put Sha Sha on the bench. Suddenly, a dog came charging towards us, barking loudly. When I turned to look at Sha Sha, it was gone. I then searched for Sha Sha everywhere. Several hours later, the sun set and I had to stop searching.

I'm feeling blue because I miss Sha Sha badly. I'm worried that it might starve or ^{be}run down by a car.

Read the passage carefully.

Mdm Tan sold newspapers at a news-stand in a busy street. She used to take her three-year-old son, David, to the news-stand with her. Sometimes when she was busy, David would walk down the street alone to look at the shops. "Don't go too far," his mother always reminded him. He usually returned after about fifteen minutes.

However, one morning Mdm Tan became worried when David did not return after an hour. She searched everywhere for him but she could not find him. In the end, she made a report to the police. At once, the police searched the street and the surrounding areas for David but still they could not find him.

That evening, Mdm Tan had a surprise. Her neighbour, Ben, came to her house and David was with him! Ben said, "I found David wandering alone in the street so I decided to bring him back to you." Mdm Tan was so overjoyed that she broke into tears. From then on Mdm Tan never took David to the news-stand again.
