The children chatted excitedly while their teacher, Mr Han, led the way. Most of them followed quietly and obediently as they walked through the dark forest. The huge leaves from many tall trees blocked out the bright rays of the morning sun. It was hard to even see the birds but the pupils could hear them. Most were twittering as if they were waking up their young for breakfast!

Suddenly, the group heard a shout. A loud booming sound which was the beating of gigantic drums followed. Half an hour later, the pupils thought they could smell something burning and firewood crackling. That frightened the girls and they began to cry loudly.

A strange creature appeared suddenly. He was a man dressed in bright coloured feathers and a pair of shorts made of leopard skin. He wore a string of brown beads around his neck but had no shoes. In his right hand was a long sharp spear. Behind him were four other men. They were carrying a small goat and smiling broadly. They were looking forward to a feast. Section F: Comprehension Passage 2 (10 marks)

Read Passage B carefully.

Passage B

Kane could not believe his ears. He had sent in his composition to a Story Writing competition a month earlier. The man in the dark blue shirt had just announced that Kane's piece of work was the best. Kane had just won four air tickets to America. He knew his family would be delighted as they had never been there before.

As soon as Kane arrived home, he told his parents and his brother, Ken, the good news. A trip for the four of them to America! Everyone in the family was excited and talking at the same time. Even Chum, his dog, was wagging its tail and running around in circles.

The family drew up a list of things to do. Mr and Mrs Wong had to apply for leave as they both worked in a bank. Ken and Kane had to inform their teachers that they were travelling. Aunt Daisy was asked to help look after Chum and her three puppies. The boys did not want them to go hungry! They needed food and their walks!

A week later, the Wong family went shopping. They bought some warm sweaters and two enormous luggage bags. Mr Wong thought he needed a new camera and so he purchased one. The boys' grandfather gave them two red packets with forty dollars in each of them. Wow! The brothers felt rich. They promised to bring home special gifts for their loved ones.

The boys simply could not wait for Friday to arrive. That was the day their holiday would begin. What fun it would be!

For questions 46-50, answer the questions in complete sentences.

46. What good news did Kane share with his family?

47. What did the Wong family buy before the trip?

48. How would Daisy help take care of the pets?
