Section E: Open-ended Comprehension 1 (8 marks)

Read the passage carefully and answer the questions that follow.

It was "Show and Tell" week in school and Lily was filled with anxiety. Everyone else talked about exciting things – a trip to the zoo, a new bicycle, a robot that danced. Lily had nothing special to share. Her grandmother, Nana, had noticed her worry all week and gave her a warm hug. "Remember, sweetheart, even the smallest things can bring joy," she whispered, placing a small, soft package in Lily's hand.

At school, Lily hesitated before carefully unwrapping the gift. Nestled in tissue paper was the teddy bear that Nana had handmade for her when she was a toddler. Its fur was a patchwork of mismatched browns, its one button eye gleaming. Nana had told her many stories behind each patch and explained that each patch held a special memory. A wave of disappointment washed over her as she realised the "gift" was just her worn out teddy. However, she remembered Nana's words to her and she held her teddy tightly.

As Lily shared about her "bear with a hundred stories" her classmates listened intently. They clapped loudly when she finished her presentation. Tammi, who never spoke, shyly showed Lily a chipped teacup, a reminder of her own loving mother. John, the class clown, admitted his favourite toy was a battered toy truck.

Section F: Open-ended Comprehension 2 (10 marks)

Read the passage carefully and answer the questions that follow.

Sam felt like a fish out of water at school during mathematics lessons. It was difficult for him to understand the concepts. He struggled to complete his work while his classmates worked through their mathematics problems as fast as lightning. Though Sam longed to participate in class, the numbers in his head were confusing and did not make sense to him.

Then, a new teacher, Ms Lee, arrived. Ms Lee was a kind and warm-hearted teacher. Within a week, she noticed the way Sam waited around the art room, captivated by the vibrant colours and swirling patterns. She knew he had a talent for Art and was not surprised that he had achieved a merit award in an art competition two years ago.

Instead of drilling Sam with only mathematics practice worksheets, Ms Lee used colourful blocks to represent numbers, turning the problems into playful puzzles. She patiently explained concepts in various ways to help Sam learn better. She showed Sam how mathematics could be found in the real world using patterns in nature, like snowflakes or waves. Ms Lee's teaching method worked as the numbers began to make sense to Sam.

The learning process was not always smooth sailing. However, Sam was encouraged by Ms Lee's patience in teaching him mathematics. In a recent assembly programme, he shared that it is not about achieving perfect scores but to face his challenges with perseverance and resilience.
